Bath, Grafton County, New Hampshire, and was the son of Timothy and Susan (white) Barron, the mother a native of Cambridge MA while the father had been born at Bath. Timothy Barron Sr. was engaged in the manufacture of lumber in his native town and operated a saw mill....Mrs. Barron died February 28, 1828, her husband passing away seven years later June 5, 1833. They were the parents of seven children, all of whom except Timothy, the subject of this sketch and his sister, Anna are dead. They were William B., who came to St. Clair county in 1836 and engaged in the mercantile business; Anna married William Southard of Bath, NH and resides there; Ruth married S.M. Sanbourn; Thomas E. lived in Port Huron and was quite active in politics; Timothy is the subject thereof; Charles, who died soon after the death of his father, and the youngest child died in infancy.

Timothy Barron was more fortunate in his educational advantages than many of the youths of his day and generation. In addition to the instruction he was able to receive in the district school, he was permitted to complete one year of high school. His proficiency in all of the common school branches secured for him a teacher's license and at the tender age of seventeen he found himself in charge of a school as teacher, at a salary of ten dollars per month. In the fall of 1838 he left New Hampshire and made the journey to St. Clair County, Michigan. His brother, William B. had come out two years previous and established himself in the mercantile business at St. Clair, and Timothy assisted in the store the first winter he was in Michigan. The next spring he took up farming, which he did for a year. He worked for his brother again, and then served as jailor and under sheriff twelve years, part of the time at St. Clair and while there was also city marshal and constable. He was United states deputy marshal for four years, under Austin E. Wing, of Monroe, Michigan, and he engaged in the sale of groceries and provisions at St. Clair for six years.

In December 1848, Mr. Barron was united in marriage to Miss Sophia P. Carleton of Bath NH. She was a daughter of Israel and Nancy (Demming) Carleton, who were natives of New Hampshire but who moved to St. Clair county Michigan in 1830, and located on the farm on which the subject of this sketch now resides. On this place Mr. and Mrs. Carleton made their home and reared their children.

Mr. and Mrs. Barron are the parents of three children: viz: Timothy D. an engineer on one of the boats plying between this point and Detroit, married Martha Fairman and they are the parents of two children, Lila and George B.; Lila died in 1857, aged three years; George C., who is engaged in business with his father.

After his marriage in 1848 Mr. Barron engaged in the grocery and provision business in St. Clair and continued it for a period of six years meeting with marked success. He then moved to his present location on the farm and in 1873 he and his son, George C., embarked in the dairy business. They established what is known as the "Maple Leaf Dairy Farm," and have continued to operate it ever since. They own at present twenty-five valuable, pure-bred Jersey cows, besides much other stock... They devote one hundred and sixty acres of their dairy farm... June 18, 1894 Mr. Barron met with his first great bereavement (the death of his wife).

He was an ardent Democrat. In religion he is free and independent, and he was formerly a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and a believer in fraternal societies.

<sup>7</sup> Biography of the bar of Orleans county, Vermont (Google eBook); Frederick W. Baldwin; Vermont watchman and state journal press, 1886

His father was a "stalward, strong-minded and well-to-do New England farmer" who owned and cultivated a square mile in Bath NH, and counted upon his family of boys to man it.... Elbridge worked on the farm until he was fourteen years old. He studied under Rev. Thomas Goodwillie to try to prepare for college. By the time he was sixteen, during the winters he was teaching school, and returned to work on the farm during vacations of Newbury Seminar, where he was pursuing academic studies.

He afterwards moved to Derby Line, VT on the border of Canada. He read law with the late distinguished Judge Redfield, and was admitted to the bar when twenty years old. He practiced law at Derby Line until he moved to Peoria, on July 1, 1850. He made many high level friends. He held the office of Vermont's state attorney for one term, and later served one term in the state's legislature as a member of the house of representatives, and soon after the enactment by congress of the late bankrupt law he was appointer register in bankruptcy for this congressional district and held the office until the law was repealed. He was law partner, first for a short time with the late Judge E.N. Powell, then with the late H.O. Merriman, then with the late George S. Blakeley, then with Henry B. Hopkins for thirteen years ending march 1878, then with A.C. Hewett, then with George B. Foster until about two years before his death.
